Whether your top priority is getting hired as soon as possible or training for a long-term career, SkillUp can help you discover in-demand career pathways and training options in your region. There are three main features on their website: 1) research careers that are growing rapidly, can be trained for in a short period of time, offer a livable wage, and are hiring in your area; 2) find training programs that are aligned to growing careers in your area, are less expensive, and usually take less time than other alternatives, and 3) apply to jobs that don't require a college degree.
