If you're interested in Grow with Google but want coaching and accountability support along the way (similar to Rivet School's model), Merit America might be the program for you! Merit America is an organization designed to support working adults who want to transition into the tech industry. They partner with companies (like Google) to offer certifications that are highly valued by employers. In addition to the certificate itself, Merit America also offers career coaching and peer support to ensure you're not just learning new technical skills but also preparing effectively for the job market. The cost of the program is $0 upfront, meaning you won't pay anything until at least 3 months after you complete or exit the program.
